Ladies Of The Stone is a 4 story book by Eliza Knight, Madeline Martin, Cecelia Mecca and Lori Ann Bailey. This is an amazing book written by 4 amazing authors, each with their own story as through time. What I loved best about this book was that all the writer have similar writing style so the book just flows and each story is so original.

It's Midsummer Night — no time for dreaming. Because sometimes, when there's more than one reality at play, too much dreaming can make the walls between them come tumbling down. Unfortunately there's usually a damned good reason for there being walls between them in the first place — to keep things out. Things who want to make mischief and play havoc with the natural order. Granny Weatherwax and her tiny coven of witches are up against real elves. And they're spectacularly nasty creatures. Even in a world of dwarves, wizards, trolls, Morris dancers — and the odd orang-utan — this is going to cause trouble... Adapted by Terry Pratchett's long-time collaborator Stephen Briggs, this play text version of Pratchett's bestselling Discworld novel Lords and Ladies wittily and faithfully reimagines the story for the stage.

Interludes and Ladies of Love The old institution of love has long out lived the values it may have once held in yesteryear. Good providing has always been the main factor but, it has gone deep and dark into plain, vain materialistic gain. In todays high-tech fast paced world where women are more likely to be the bread winner than the man, the definition of love has taken a whole new meaning. Interludes and Ladies of Love gives a glimpse into the mind of women, and how they view love today. The authors life experiences, and observations was the reason he wrote this book; Inspired by God to write how love is rapidly deteriorating in todays society, and with the acceptance of loves lowering level as long as theres a profit to be made, and no spiritual thought is given to their actions to attain it. Love and relationships are like everything else economically controlled, and can be virtually shut down in most cases where money takes priority over love. Unless women formulate a higher consciousness spiritually, and think outside of the box that constrict the mentality of todays society things will inevitably get worse in love land. Interludes and Ladies of Love is an in depth look behind the scene of what appear before the eyes of man, taking a look into loves unseen deceptions. Sympathy is expressed for the so-called manipulator of women (pimps) because, they havent realized yet, that the only true pimps are women, and they (the men) have pimped out nobody but themselves through their arrogant ignominy, and dependency on the ladies of love to provide financial security. Glimpse inside the unsavory interludes women delve into with hidden motivations held within what appear to be wide open, and innocent. Through the beauty of their bodies women truly do make themselves a power to be reckoned with in this world that feels a need to satisfy its insatiable sensations for money by any means necessary.

A tender and imaginative retelling of the adventures of two of history 's most compelling women In 1778 Eleanor Butler and Sarah Ponsonby left County Kilkenny for Wales to live together as a married couple. Both well born, highly educated Irish women, the Ladies of Llangollen, as they came to be known, defied all eighteenth-century social convention and spent half a century together in a loving relationship. Removed from the intrusive gaze of the world, the fictional Eleanor and Sarah retreat to their shared home to study literature and language and enjoy their solitude. In an imagined account, Doris Grumbach brings this gripping chronicle to new audiences. With a keen sense of the rhythms and routines of longtime partnership, Grumbach breathes vivid life into this fascinating story of a passion both shocking and steadfast.

Transcendence in general and transformation in particular have long been established as key motifs in apocalypses. The transformation of a seer during a heavenly journey is found commonly in such esoteric apocalypses as 1 Enoch. No heavenly journey occurs in the apocalypses treated here. Rather, symbolic women figures--"ladies" in the classical sense--who are associated with God's city or Tower, undergo transformation at key points in the action. The surface structures of Joseph and Aseneth, 4 Ezra, the Apocalypse and The Shepherd of Hermas are traced, and the crucial transformation episodes are located within each structure. Transformation of figures which represent God's people points to the significance of identity within the apocalyptic perspective. Earlier analyses have demonstrated that the apocalyptic perspective urges the reader to consider life from a different stance in time and in space ("temporal" and "spatial" axes). The present analysis suggests that the apocalypse also charts its revelations along an "axis of identity" so that the reader is invited to become, as it were, someone more in tune with the mysteries he or she is viewing. Of special interest is the treatment of the increasingly well-known romance Joseph and Aseneth alongside apocalypss, a parallel which is fruitful because of the curious visionary sequence, closely related to apocalypse in content and form, which is found in the inner centre of that work.
